The need for more talking, listening, and connecting is all the more apparent with each passing day. Our March events offer some ways to approach our local and global communities with more empathy and respect.

Tuesday, March 1 6:00 - 7:30 pm

Food Sovereignty and Farming as Resistance

Growing and foraging food are tools to address the dismantling of systemic oppression and addressing underlying economic, political, and public health issues that affect marginalized communities.

Join us in a conversation exploring the ways we can incorporate justice and decolonize our dinner tables for sustainability, accessibility, and equity.

Panel Discussion about Indie Lens Pop-Up documentary, Oscar-nominated, Writing with Fire which tells the story of a women-led, Dalit-led news outlet in Uttar Pradesh taking it dilapidated houses, spigots of dirty water, malnourished children, and maimed bodies?

Join us as we explore the ways that the framing and representation of “those in need” perpetuate a “savior” mentality amongst “those with capacity” and how this could further deny groups, communities, and individuals their fundamental humanity.

Please view the film ahead of time at PBS.org, available to stream for free starting Monday, March 28, 2022.
